I totally agree that timing is a huge factor in online course structure. Asynchronous and synchronous courses differ by quite a lot! I'm not sure if I have a preference but they both have their pros and cons. Asynchronous courses offer flexibility while synchronous ones aid in staying on track and real-time responses. I wonder whether synchronous or asynchronous courses are easier for instructors to teach and put together, given their unique structures.